

Conservation News & Announcements

January 16, 2008

Winners announced in 'Climate Action Now' T-shirt design contest!

Click here for instructions on how to download and install Adobe Acrobat Reader.)

Mayor Greg Nickels and a panel of judges from Seattle Public Schools, Seattle Art Museum, Nordstrom and the arts community announced the winners of the 2008 Seattle Climate Action Now T-shirt and calender on Jan. 16. Kids across the city submitted designs along the theme: what can you do everyday to to be part of the solution to climate change? The awards ceremony at the Pavilion at the SAM Olympic Sculpture Park was packed with family, friends and well-wishers. The mayor, Seattle School Board member Micheal DeBell and other speakers congratulated and thanked all the students who participated. Their art will help inspire all of us to take action on climate change.

Seattle Climate Action Now Get Started Guide

For more detailed information on specific climate actions we can all take, why these are important and make a difference, and what resources are available to help us take action, please visit the Seattle Climate Action Now web portal at www.SeattleCAN.org

Questions? Contact Nicole Riss at (206)252-0599 or nariss@seattleschools.org

Special thanks to co-sponsor:

