

BROKEN?

A student's parents came up to me at open house and actually thanked me for writing such a detailed note why their son's arm had signs it might be broken and should be evaluated by a doctor ASAP. (I had been unable to reach either one by phone.) They said they had shown their son's arm to two doctors on their block who had said "no break - don't worry". They took their son to the ER and it was broken in two places. Nothing like a sincere thank you to make you feel good.

Joan Kelly, RN BSN
Seattle Public Schools
School Nurse